VOL. 20. No. 19

GAINESBORO, TENN., THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1918

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

JACKSON COUNTY GOES OVER THE TOP IN THIRD LIBERTY LOAN $24,350.

Ten Honor Flags Won By The County--Farmers Subscribe For Bonds.

In the third Liberty Loan campaign which closed Saturday, Jackson county went over the top and took the second line trenches. The county's quota of $35,650 was over subscribed $24,350, making the total amount $60,150. Gainesboro, Granville, and the 1st, 2nd, 5th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 12th and 14th districts won honor flags by over subscribing their quotas. The 10th and 14th districts over subscribed their quotas 161 per cent.

The farmers of the county subscribed for the largest majority of the bonds, which is proof that they are standing behind the government, ready and willing to do their part in helping win the war.

CANTEEN WORKERS CATER TO POILU'S APPETITE FOR OYSTERS AND SALADS

By ELEANOR ROBSON BELMONT.

WHEN I left for Europe a few months ago I had no cast-iron reverence for the Red Cross. When I returned from Europe I brought home with me unbounded belief in the organization. I had seen enough to make me realize that this was the best method of serving the soldiers and sailors. We are waging an economic war. Therefore the surest and most effective way to help is through the established channels selected for that purpose by the government.

The main work of the American Red Cross, however, is, of course, carried on in France. The policy of those heading this work is to back up the French in their own efforts and to help them develop along their own lines, not to root out French institutions and transplant American ones. Whether we work, then, in canteens, in warehouses, in dispensaries, for pollus or for refugees, in Paris or in huts used for this purpose are little alleys marked "Paris," "Dijon," or "Lyons." These little alleys are laid out with bunks filled with sleeping men. If a pollu is going to Paris, he throws himself down in the Paris bunk, serene in the knowledge that he will be called in time for the Paris train.

In some of the canteens the lights have to be dimmed on account of aeroplanes. Often the lights are covered with colored muslin shields which make a rosy glow that is very homelike. One of the canteens has been decorated by some of the best camouflage artists in France, who have taken great delight in covering the walls and even the ceiling with their pictures. The canteens are open day and night for the benefit of the men at the big junction points.

Do More Than Feed Men.

The women in the canteens do more than feed the men, however. Important as that is. Pollus leaving their families are naturally depressed and need sympathetic listeners. Some one to admire his wife's picture, some one to laugh over the baby's latest sign of genius, some one to tell him that the oldest boy is the image of his handsome father—this is as real a need in the pollu's life as salad or soup. In fact the presence of these fine women is such an influence for good that officers say the morale of the army is distinctly higher wherever the canteens are. This causes great rivalry among the canteen workers. Each one wants her canteen to be the best and most popular in the service.

Besides this direct, personal service to the soldiers the Red Cross is doing a kind of John the Baptist work with dispensaries. We have fifteen dispensaries scattered through districts where war has been or is likely to be. France had mobilized 18,000 of her 24,000 physicians, leaving about 6,000 for the whole of civilian France. Sometimes you will find one old doctor taking care of several villages with no means of transportation except occasionally an aged, overworked horse. Here is a chance for the Red Cross to step in and help. There is a syndicate of physicians to which the Red Cross applies to find out if a certain village has a medical adviser; if not we establish a center and operate in a given section around the center.

Bathing a Luxury.

A Red Cross doctor and nurse go out regularly to the villages in their section. Each village is informed when they are coming so that all who want medical advice or treatment can meet together in one spot and save unnecessary calls. Of course, if any one is too ill to come to the doctor, the doctor goes to him. The nurses carry among other things shower baths for babies. In many regions of France, owing to lack of facilities, bathing is a luxury, so the superstition has grown up that it is dangerous. Now since the mothers are convinced that their children will be neither killed nor injured, but on the contrary benefited by baths, how they do look forward to them!

After all this inspiring activity of the Red Cross on the other side, romantic in spite of the drudgery and tragedy, I expected the work here to be an anti-climax. I was amazed, then, when I returned to see what we were accomplishing at home.

ELEANOR ROBSON BELMONT.

the devastated districts, for the children or for the aged, it is always on the same plan of backing up the French if they have any organization or plan.

Pollus Like Oysters and Salad.

The canteen work is one of the most gratifying ways of helping the men. To see those pollus enjoying the first delicacies they have had for days is a soul-satisfying sight. The English and French maintain canteens where they dispense soup, hot coffee and cocoa, tobacco, chocolate, etc., but the American Red Cross canteens serve real dinners at cost or under. The pollus are inordinately fond of oysters and salad; when they can order a plate of oysters or a dish of salad in an American canteen they are as happy as children. We have six canteens in the French zone for the French army—France is, of course, divided into zones. In one line of communication canteen we serve from 4,000 to 8,000 men a day. These canteens are near the railroad stations for the benefit of the men going to the front, being transferred to some other section, or going home on a furlough. In one section the

RED CROSS CHAIRMAN TELLS OF HORRORS OF AIR RAID ON PARIS.

Germany Must Be Defeated Now--Urges All To Work Hard To Win The War.

E. W. Ogden, chairman of one of the Tennessee chapters of the American Red Cross, who is now in Paris and witnessed the horrors of the recent air raid, writes that he would rather take his chance in hell any day than in a country the Huns had conquered.

The last air raid we had in Paris made me so mad I will have to work it off. It was the worst Paris has had. Forty-seven killed and 207 wounded reported, but it keeps growing.

We were awakened at 11:30 p. m. by the siren of an auto passing rapidly. Sounded like the wail of a lost soul from hell. It was a beautiful, clear moonlight night. We could see the French planes but no Huns. They were over 10,000 feet up and painted so impossible to see.

Someone knocked on our door and said: "Dress and go downstairs." (No lights allowed.) So we dressed in the dark and went down to the second floor, sat on the stairs and listened to the old-timers relate their air raid experiences. Then we took a short walk. Saw a fire bomb drop within six blocks. Hit a well-known bank, blew out the iron shutters and all windows, signs, etc., around.

A plane out of control came down—Place in Concord, hit one of the big lamp posts (iron two and one-half feet in diameter) and knocked off six feet of the top. We could see a number of the French planes—forty the papers said. The Huns came in four squadrons of seven each, did their dirty work, and sneaked away, with the French after them. On our street, roof of one house knocked in, and across the street, large hole in stone wall made from piece of shell.

The people of the United States must wake up and realize that we are fighting a crazy, mad nation. It is no more time to talk than if you saw a mad dog coming at you, ready to bite. You would not argue, but would get a club or a gun and swat him hard.

The American Indian, in his palmist days, would never have acted, nor could he conceive such treatment. Many of the worst stories will not bear writing, but I would rather take my chance in hell any day than in a country that the Huns had conquered.

Make the people at home realize these things: WHILE THE FIGHTING IS 3,000 MILES FROM THE UNITED STATES UNLESS WE BEAT THEM HERE ONCE FOR ALL NOW, IT WILL HAVE TO BE DONE LATER.

Let it be done quickly, for there can be no rest or peace in this world until they are completely beaten. Everything must give way to winning the war. Nothing else can matter. The Red Cross here is working hard. The chief of stores (warehouse department) is a splendid man, said to be worth $30,000,000 and is working harder than any of us for the cause.

MAKE THE SOUTHERN DIVISION WORK. AND KEEP WORKING; YOU CANNOT DO TOO MUCH.

Yours,
E. W. OGDEN.
